

Figure 1: Showing percentage burrow occupancy of adult breeding birds and chicks nearing fledging on the four islands surveyed including the mean for each, with adult breeding birds equalling the average burrow occupancy (1998-2014) but the fledgling chick numbers occupancy rates this year reaching 25.2 percent considerably below the long term average (1993 – 2015) of 40.6 percent.