Stewards spoke to trainer Mr B Adams in relation to the racing manners of Adam's Lilly on the first turn. Acting on their own observations, viewing the official patrol films and taking evidence from Mr Adams, stewards accepted the evidence of Mr Adams and were of the opinion that Adam's Lilly had shifted up the track on the first turn which allowed Hypatios to gain distance rapidly and subsequently gain a run to the inside of Adam's Lilly. After considering all evidence available, stewards were not satisfied that Adam's Lilly had visibly eased and took no action against the greyhound.

Stewards spoke to trainer Mr P Phillips in relation to the racing manners of Hypatios on the first turn. Acting on their own observations, viewing the official patrol films and taking evidence off Mr Phillips, stewards were of the opinion that although it could be deemed that Hypatios had initially made head or muzzle contact with Adam's Lilly, this was not due to its own accord. Stewards were satisfied after viewing the patrol films that Hypatios had not turned his head either inwards or outwards and the subsequent head or muzzle contact was as a result of Adam's Lilly who had initially crossed wider on the track from the rail and then electing to shift back down the track to the rail contributed to the contact being made by being in advance of Hypatios resulting in both greyhounds bumping heavily and being severely checked. Due to the contributing factors as outlined, stewards refrained from taking any action against this greyhound.
